

WORLD WIDE WEB FOUNDATION

Dear Delegate,

We are pleased to confirm your participation in the 2nd Africa Summit on Women and Girls in Technology, from October 9-11, 2018 at Labadi Beach Hotel, Accra, Ghana.

The Summit is a collaboration between the World Wide Web Foundation, Alliance for Affordable Internet \(A4AI\), Ghana Ministry of Communications, African Development Bank, Open Society Initiative for West Africa, Internet Society, Facebook, Federal Ministry of Economic Cooperation and Development \(Germany\), Google, Swedish International Development Agency and UN Women.

Additionally, it is a critical forum focused on how technology policies and plans can further the rights and interests of African women and girls.

As a confirmed delegate for the 2nd Africa Summit on Women and Girls in Technology, we invite your input into the discussions we will have on ongoing key policy processes in the continent and across the globe on broadband Internet access, sustainable development, and women's empowerment. We aim to connect women's rights advocates and policymakers with Internet rights advocates, broadband policy leaders, and leading and aspiring women technologists and innovators in Africa to create a platform and present a landscape of issues on women's rights and empowerment on and through the Web.

We have developed an ambitious 3-day program with high level participation, keynote Panels, Lightning Talks, and several hands-on workshops focusing on the themes of the Summit.

We look forward to welcoming you.
